

---

From: Black, Barry T. <Barry.Black@ic.fbi.gov>
Sent: Tuesday, October 14, 2014 3:04 PM
To: 'JAllread@dps.state.ok.us'; 'jdthompson@cityoftulsa.org';
'ROBTYE@OKLAHOMACOUNTY.ORG'; Clay Bolin; 'jwarner@midwestcityok.org';
'jason.hodges@okc.gov'; Ramos, Celso; 'scott.fees@edmondok.com'
Subject: FYI

I'll be in So Dakota until next Tues. The phone should work and Celso around. You may be aware of the follow already. If not it's just FYI.

Thanks

Oklahoma and Texas residents will gather Wednesday, Oct. 15, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Oklahoma City outside Cox Convention Center to protest the International Energy Conference being hosted by Oklahoma City University's Meinders School of Business.

The International Energy Conference will feature current Texas Governor Rick Perry, Devon Energy CEO John Richels, and Matthew McManus with the U.S. Department of State and other international leaders in the oil and gas industry.

The protest, dubbed the Rational Synergy Convergence, will highlight the oil and gas industry, economic inequality in the age of a "fracking boom," and the effects of global capitalism on human lives.

Great Plains Tar Sands Resistance has called for concerned residents to speak out for an economically just and ecologically sustainable future.

Local community leaders such as Angela Spotts of Stop Fracking Payne County will share about her story of living next to one of Devon Energy's frack wells in Stillwater. Concerned Native leaders such as David Hill of Oklahoma American Indian Movement will speak out against Devon Energy's proposed tar sands mine, Walleye, in Alberta, Canada.

Barry T. Black
FBI - Oklahoma City
Special Agent
Master Bomb Technician
Cell: 405-250-1917
Office: 405-290-3615