You had stated that whatever solution we come up with it must pass with the voters. I would caution you on property tax bond issues, historically a 50/50 proposition for non road issues.

I very much appreciate the input and agree we can handle the next few informational subject specific meetings internally. The decision that will need to be made is how the following or final phase is handled. I am really concerned that we go into the final/education phase without the appropriate level of support. I am not wedded to any specific solution, but I learned the hard way both on the first library bond issue that failed and with the Stormwater Utility how complex these issues can be and how easy it is to underestimate public response.

I am in total agreement with Andy. I will admit, I was a big advocate for hiring them, and I think they or another group could absolutely help us with the public side of things further down the road, but I didn't feel they provided the assistance I was hoping for, at this stage anyway.

Andy's suggestions at the end of the meeting to have different sessions on capital projects, water quality, and maintenance/ flooding are so Norman specific I would anticipate staff having to have a huge role anyway.

So, I absolutely think the committee has a lot more work to do, but I do feel confident that we can do it with our very talented and capable staff for the moment.

Thank you for your time.

Hello All –

As a follow up to our Stormwater meeting on Monday, I believe the Stormwater Committee will require more time to effectively iron out the details that will be needed to provide a politically appropriate proposal to Council.

Ideally, I would ask that the Council provide for the Committee to move forward with staff only over the next few meetings. Then, potentially have Freese & Nichols (or an alternative) provide assistance on the finishing touches of the plan and provide assistance in appropriately disseminating the information to the community at large. I believe the consultant will provide the most meaningful assistance at the end of the Committee process, when the need for an independent party will be most valued. Please note these are my thoughts only and I am open to Amanda (cc'd in this email) and to each of your thoughts should you feel another approach should also be considered.

Thank you again for your thoughts and time as we move forward on finding a solution for Norman.

Andy

"We're Still In Paris"

Mayor,

We wanted to pass along an opportunity from our friends at the Center for American Progress, which is helping to facilitate a "we're still in Paris" statement from a bipartisan coalition of U.S. governors, more than 100 Mayors, 137 colleges and universities, and over 800 businesses to declare that they continue to support climate action and the Paris Agreement in the wake of the administration's withdrawal announcement.

We know many of you have signed on, but wanted to do one last send to ensure everyone has the opportunity to sign, if you wish to do so.

The letter, which you can find below, will not be branded. It will come directly from the signatories and posted on Medium at 1 pm today, June 5.

Unfortunately, we're on a tight timeline, as the statement will post mid-day today to hit the Paris press cycle.

If you have any questions, or if you need more information, please feel free to reach out to Erin Cohan at ecohan@americanprogress.org or (202) 741-6274.

Thank you!

Virginia, Evan and Ellie

We Are Still In

Open letter to the international community and parties to the Paris Agreement from U.S. state, local, and business leaders

We, the undersigned mayors, governors, college and university leaders, investors and businesses are joining forces for the first time to declare that we will continue to support climate action to meet the Paris Agreement.

In December 2015 in Paris, world leaders signed the first global commitment to fight climate change. The landmark agreement succeeded where past attempts failed because it allowed each country to set its own emission reduction targets and adopt its own strategies for reaching them. In addition, nations - inspired by the actions of local and regional governments, along with businesses - came to recognize that fighting climate change brings significant economic and public health benefits.

The Trump administration's announcement undermines a key pillar in the fight against climate change and damages the world's ability to avoid the most dangerous and costly effects of climate change. Importantly, it is also out of step with what is happening in the United States.

In the U.S., it is local and state governments, along with businesses, that are primarily responsible for the dramatic decrease in greenhouse gas emissions in recent years. Actions by each group will multiply and accelerate in the years ahead, no matter what policies Washington may adopt.

In the absence of leadership from Washington, states, cities, colleges and universities and businesses representing a sizeable percentage of the U.S. economy will pursue ambitious climate goals, working together to take forceful action and to ensure that the U.S. remains a global leader in reducing emissions.

It is imperative that the world know that in the U.S., the actors that will provide the leadership necessary to meet our Paris commitment are found in city halls, state capitals, colleges and universities, investors and businesses. Together, we will remain actively engaged with the international community as part of the global effort to hold warming to well below 2°C and to accelerate the transition to a clean energy economy that will benefit our security, prosperity, and health.

Here is one that I was sent. I have received links to several. I think they are all part of the Democratic Mayors Climate group. This in itself presents some problems in a town where the Mayor is a non-partisan position. I also have only read main points of the Paris Climate agreement and don't know what we are committing ourselves to and actually think it should be a Council resolution if we do anything. I was immediately reminded of the meeting with the Sierra Club and right now I can't locate that resolution done on the climate when Haralson was here. Lynne

Here is what we have, although we have done a lot of research since then to find out what Norman has accomplished since these documents were created. We are still sharing that information and have yet to create a new document. That is our end goal. The new document will provide an update as to what has been accomplished and we will implement new goals...before it gets to council. As you might imagine, it's a very slow process and we don't anticipate it being completed until mid to late fall. We can discuss more on Friday.

As requested, attached are several items associated with the U.S. Mayor's Climate Protection Agreement. ECAB was tasked with making recommendations to implement the agreement. These recommendations were passed on to the Mayor and Council in 2007. ECAB also revisited this with a resolution in February 2009.
